

PEACE REIGNS IN SAN FRANCISCO, 122,000 BACK TO JOBS

TRADE HUNTS AS STORES OPEN AGAIN AFTER BIG STRIKE

Troops Withdrawn From Coast City as Conditions Return to Normal; Big Crowds Gay

By JAMES L. KILGALLAN
International News Service Staff Correspondent
San Francisco, July 20—Normal conditions returned to strife-torn San Francisco today following the calling off of the general strike which, for four hectic days, had seriously interfered with the mode of living of more than 1,000,000 people.

The wheels of business, which had been cut down to a faint whir, picked up speed immediately after the end of the general strike reached the public through newspaper extras and over the radio.

TRADE REVIVES
People again went to the movies, hotel dining rooms reopened, bathers again began shaving customers. Restaurants all over the city catered to their old trade. Traffic cars carried loads of passengers. Women rushed to shop. Industry hummed.

The general strike was terminated when the San Francisco Labor Council adopted a resolution, by a vote of 131 to 174, to end the walk-out. More than 122,000 union workers were sent back to their jobs by the decision.

Mayor Angelo Rossi, of San Francisco, who had worked unceasingly for peace, congratulated the labor leaders on their decision to end the strike.

San Francisco has stamped out, without bargain or compromise, an attempt to import into its life the very real danger of revolt. San Francisco was founded by liberty-loving people. Its traditions are sacred to us. We will tolerate no tyranny, either of Communism or of any other foreign or domestic dictatorship.

The mayor made it clear that the crushing of the general strike must not be construed to mean that San Francisco either desires or will tolerate any attempt to destroy its liberties or invade its rights.

BRIDGES IN A RAGE
Edward Vandenberg, chairman of the general strike committee and the leader of the conservative labor forces, announced the strike-keeping vote with a smiling face. The radio element, led by Harry Bridges, was depressed by the outcome. Bridges left the ship Temple where there was a scene.

The union leaders, however, did not call off the strike of the longshoremen and mariners, which brought about the sympathy strike of 117 additional labor units.

But, in a resolution adopted, they marine union to call off their strike and resume work pending arbitration by the President's national longshoremen's board.

Union leaders adopted a resolution demanding the withdrawal of the 460 California National guard straggling San Francisco's famous waterfront.

General Hugh B. Johnson, NRA administrator and federal mediator in the strike, announced he will use "every influence" to see that the maritime dispute is brought to arbitration as soon as possible.

RADIO PRESIDENT
He plans to meet with the ship owners to talk the situation over with them. He made arrangements, however, to fly to Los Angeles, where he is scheduled to make a speech this morning. He will confer with the shipowners tonight.

Johnson sent the following radio message to President Roosevelt: "General strikes called off by splendid patriotic attitude of regular labor leaders. While situation should be settled within twenty-four hours."

With "business as usual," San Francisco was living up to its motto, "San Francisco Knows How." There was atmosphere of relief bordering on gaiety throughout the city.

HUGE CROWDS GAY
The movie houses which the previous three nights had been dark were playing hosts to huge crowds. Taverns and restaurants were crowded with chatting throngs. The chief topic of conversation centered about personal experiences during the recent eventful days.

Strikers seemed pleased over the prospect of returning to their jobs. While the voting was in progress at the Labor Temple a large crowd of strikers assembled in the home and vicinity. When it was announced the general strike was off, a cheer went up and the place became a scene of merrily wild revelry.

Man and Beast Prepared for Strike

The cameraman, the policeman and his horse were masked and fully protected against tear gas bombs in the general strike in San Francisco which has been called off. The mounted officer is wielding a sawed-off shotgun, a much preferred weapon in close quarters.

Fruits and vegetables composed the first loads of food into San Francisco with a partial lifting of the embargo imposed by the strike committee. A load of vegetables under the guard of a soldier and a plain-clothes officer are shown. (Picture from International News Photograph Service.)

Rossi Lauds Labor for Ending Strike

San Francisco, July 20—Mayor Angelo J. Rossi of San Francisco, who had much to do with bringing an end to the four-day general strike, issued the following statement over his signature yesterday and later broadcast the statement to the nation at large over the National Broadcasting network:

By ANGELO J. ROSSI
Mayor of San Francisco.
I congratulate the real leaders of organized labor in their decision, without bargain or compromise, an attempt to import into its life the very real danger of revolt.

San Francisco was founded by liberty-loving people. Its traditions are sacred. We will tolerate no tyranny, either of Communism or of any other foreign or domestic dictatorship.

The crushing of the general strike must not be construed to mean that San Francisco either desires or will tolerate any attempt to destroy union labor or invade its rights.

ADJUSTMENT SEEN
I am sure the differences between labor and its employers will be speedily adjusted upon the basis of justice to all. The people of San Francisco are to be congratulated for their fortitude, good spirit and sanity, with which they have met and passed the crisis in their affairs.

We must congratulate, also, those many sane, loyal members of organized labor who, when cooperation has brought about a victory for government and Americans. We will deal effectively with the small group who oppose peace and plot revolution.

GRATITUDE EXPRESSED
I want to take this opportunity to express my gratitude to the many thousands of loyal citizens of San Francisco and of the nation, who have telegraphed, written and telephoned their efforts of support and co-operation.

Such a response during a crisis from all elements of the community cannot but reassure and inspire those of us who are charged with the task of maintaining law and order and protecting the life and property of our citizens.

In justice, I must express my gratitude and that of the people of San Francisco to the many citizens who have been called upon and who rendered their valuable services.

I assure you this is a happy day for San Francisco.

GERTRUDE THELM
MRS. RAUER

The morals case, that has all Hollywood talking, against Gloria Marsh, film extra, and Dave Allen, promoter, which allegedly started in a "wild party" in June De Long, "most beautiful-handed girl in the films," was to be continued in court today. Mrs. Bauer, manager, and Gertrude Thelm, maid in the apartment house, are expected to testify. Charges of "frameup" have been hurled back and forth since the trial opened. 2 WOMEN TOLD MORALS FRAME, SAYS BLONDE

By Universal Service
Los Angeles, July 20—Blondette Serena Rowland, a blonde visitor from San Francisco, testified today at the morals trial of Dave Allen, manager of the Hollywood Central Casino, that she was a party to a "wild party" in June De Long, "most beautiful-handed girl in the films," was to be continued in court today. Mrs. Bauer, manager, and Gertrude Thelm, maid in the apartment house, are expected to testify. Charges of "frameup" have been hurled back and forth since the trial opened. (Picture from International News Photograph Service.)

After Allen had been indicted by the county grand jury as a result of a "wild party," Allen assertedly participated in with Miss De Long and Gloria Marsh, film extra, who also is on trial. Miss De Long regretted her actions. Mrs. Rowland said she threatened to commit suicide.

REMOVED TOLD
"In my room at a Hollywood hotel, Miss De Long asked out to her room and she was sorry anything had come out of the party, and was terribly remorseful she had dragged Miss Marsh into the scandalous scene."

Mrs. Rowland also asserted Miss De Long threatened to commit suicide, and said:

"I told me suicide was the only way insurance rate in the police angle of the case had gone so far for her to drop the charges. She was fearful of the consequences if she did drop them, she declared."

FLED CHARGES
Miss De Long, a film extra, fled to San Francisco last April 27—the day after the alleged "wild party" in her apartment.

Mrs. Rowland said she stayed at the home of Mrs. Pearl Owens with Miss De Long her first night here, but moved to her hotel the next day. She added, "Pearl was introduced to me at Mrs. Pat Harn's. The witness said she met Allen in her apartment and that she, Pearl, had walked in on him. And you should have seen Allen's face when I greeted him," was her laughing comment to me."

Chelsea May Get Auto Rates Cut
Chelsea, which has the highest automobile insurance rate in the state, may find comfort in the statement of Secretary Wynna Kagan of the Chelsea Chamber of Commerce, that any change in rates for that district will be downward. An improved accident record is responsible.

Molokai, July 20—About 60 men and women were without work here today due to the closing down of the Mahon Silk Co. after strike breakers struck 40 workers when they returned to work after a lay-off of 13 weeks.

Among the reports was one of foreign origin that 2000 persons were killed in the riot of June 30 and that prisoners at the Dachau concentration camp were murdered.

Although the reports are prompt denials, the belief prevailed in many quarters that the government had not done enough to protect the public on the revolt and that a report of a soldier's death was a virtual promise of the German army an official said.

HITLER TALE RIDICULED
The reference was to the fact that the chancellor went Wednesday to the Zeppelinfeld field where he took the salute of the Knight Cavalry Regiment in the Prussian army.

A number of expensive automobiles to be seen in the streets has decreased decidedly since the pressure on storm troops and others to abandon "high living."

WANNAMAKER'S HEIRS SUE
By Universal Service
New York, July 20—Declaring they have received nothing from a $30,000,000 trust fund set up by the late John Wanamaker, the heirs of the department store magnate have sued the executor of his will.

The complaint asserts the defendants and employees, including lawyers and accountants, have received fees while the plaintiffs have received no income whatever from the estate since the death of Wanamaker in 1923.

The plaintiffs, all leading figures in society, are Mrs. Marie Louise Mann, of New York; Mrs. Francis W. Mann, of South Carolina, and John Wanamaker, of Kansas, who is in federal court.

to the secret police as competent, adding, however, "but the figures, I am sure, are exaggerated."

The Berlin secret police referred the questioner to its Munich organization where an official statement was given and then commented: "Remember, no one is being held."

NO INFORMATION
The Bavarian Ministry of Justice said: "We cannot give information, ask the police."

It was recalled that Chancellor Hitler, speaking before the Reichstag, said:

"A number of deeds of violence, that are not in any way connected with this action, will be turned over to the normal courts."

It did not touch upon those arrested in connection with the alleged revolt.

It was intimated at that time that Hitler's mention of 77 dead was the final official word on the whole matter.

"SCANDAL MONITORING"
The term applied to the rumors, both here and abroad, by those officials who had not left the capital to escape the heat.

TWO INJECTED IN KILLING OF GIRL

Little Rock, Ark., July 20 (U.S.)—Killing of Helen Spence Eaton, "Arkansas bad girl," as she was making her fourth prison escape a few days ago, resulted in the indictment of one man on a first degree murder charge and another as accessory before the fact.

V. O. Brockman, dismissed as assistant superintendent of the State Farm for Women, after the escape and the slaying of the Eaton girl, was accused as the necessary party carrying a maximum of the same penalty as the crime itself—death in the electric chair or life imprisonment.

The Washington SIDESHOW

By GEORGE ROTHWELL

Copyright, 1934, by Universal Service, Inc. Washington, July 20—The theory that the brain trust is a product of the New Deal is a widely entertained, but not in Washington, Washington, with something of memory still functioning, even in the bewildering maze of today's political landscape, which confuses the thought itself, knows better.

It was back in the Hoover era that the brain trust—though not as yet christened—began functioning. Many of the renowned economic notions which have the country puzzled and worried—today, were his first appearance in Washington before Mr. Roosevelt was elected. Before he was even nominated.

Already some adroit minds are at work here tracing the New Deal to its source. They are checking records, and collecting data. For one day the history of the services rendered will be written. When it is it will be disclosed.

Forerunner— "Intellectual" for want of a better term in a hurry— began, under Hoover, what they have largely accomplished under his successor.

The brain trust, to employ the favorite Rooseveltian term, has been criticized and ridiculed for pouring under every third word of cotton. That economic theory of dealing with crop surplus is generally credited to the brain trust. As a matter of fact that program was recommended and lauded in August, 1931, long before Mr. Roosevelt began his presidential campaign, by Mr. Hoover's farm board. It is a matter of record.

Put this into: There is reason to believe that that idea was proposed to the farm board by Mr. Hoover himself. Who put the idea "over" in Hoover's hands yet remained. The old farm board swallowed the idea. It had to. This much is clear, that the cotton-pouring scheme hasn't been traced back any farther than Mr. Herbert Hoover.

Hoover Idea

It is certain that Hoover was playing with the NRA idea before Roosevelt was elected. The E. P. C. of course, was a Hoover idea, set long before the Democratic came in. But there is another, scarcely thought, scarcely heard of, the widespread skepticism with which the brain trust's scheme to slaughter the surplus hog has been greeted.

In the winter of 1929-30 the dairy advisory committee of the old Hoover farm board recommended the slaughter of every tenth cow. That has been forgotten, but it's a fact. And there is the germ of the brain trust's most costly effort!

Some Surplus

Speaking about sub-marginal land, there is also such a thing as the sub-marginal congressman in a surplus of livestock. The water traders of that party would like to see quite a number of them plowed under in November.

By this means they would hope to see the Democratic majority in the House in the next Congress reduced to the point where that body can function. It is feared that if the 74th Congress cannot be kept in hand, the party's hopes for 1936 may be seriously jeopardized.

No Democrat would put his finger on the map and say, "we hope to lose this Congressional district." Theoretically the Democratic Congressional campaign committee, now getting under way at full blast in the House office building, strives to elect every Democratic candidate. Actually the water traders pray for a reduced majority in the House.

Many of these sub-marginal Democrats were elected last time by the skin of their teeth—as State Senator Pat McCarran, Democratic winner of Nevada's most defeated. Put used to draw a little opposition. He would even finance his opponent. One time his opponent beat him.

ROOSEVELT TO AID COLE- CURLEY ROW

A hands-off policy in the contest between former Mayor James M. Curley and General Charles H. Cole for the Democratic nomination for governor will be maintained by the Roosevelt administration.

Louis McNulty How, confidential secretary to President Roosevelt, indicated this position in an interview following a talk he made at the Summer Institute for Social Progress at Wellesley College.

HELP AFTER PRIMARY
How, who is summing at Newport, although expressing keen interest in the local political situation, declined to comment other than to say that once the primaries are over, every help will be extended to keep Massachusetts in the Democratic column. He said:

"I have no objections to talking, but people persist in thinking that my views are the views of the President."

Taking as his subject, "What Shall we do next," Secretary How turned his audience of President Roosevelt's friends to the subject of trying to find a way to back to "what we were." He said:

"The temptation to go back is great. It is human for us as individuals or collectively to seek the easier way. But we can't go back. We have to keep going because we must."

Today, he said, there is a tendency to find a common goal. "We can't go back to old conditions because we have no place to go," he emphasized. "Whether the road we are taking is the right one or not is not as important as it is that there is a road to take. We have got to meet other nations on a basis of economical equality."

OUTLINES TASK
In answer to the criticism, How outlined briefly the general task that the administration faced in getting the alphabet campaign started. Something, he said, had to be done and done in a hurry. There was no time to sit down and study it out, he said.

One of the greatest difficulties, he said, was the placing of the right people in the right positions. To correct this situation, he urged the appointment of committees in every community down to 10,000 population to get the right kind of people to fill positions would be tremendously simplified.

More than 200 Dorchester residents, opening the permit granted by the Boston street commission for the storage of more than 700 tons of fuel and range oil, 73 people, Neponset, were among the decision makers.

At the hearing, Neponset residents charged that the oil tanks would be a menace to the district, and that the danger of flying sparks from trains near the tanks at the site at low tide.

Shell-Shocked War Veteran Missing
Police were asked today by Mrs. Jennette Glennie of 58 Heath street, Hartford, Conn., to search for her husband, James A. Glennie, shell-shocked World War veteran, who vanished last night in South Boston.

Husband and wife were visiting their car to go for a ride. He failed to return and a search revealed the car parked at the foot of Tremble street, at the boulevard.

Glennie is 27 years old, six feet tall, weighs 220 pounds, is of light complexion and wears green trousers with a black stripe, white shirt and low black shoes. He had no hat on.

Mayor Dismisses 8000
Because of the extremely high unemployment rate, Mayor James M. Curley today dismissed 8000 men from the afternoon.

Fire Is Puzzle to Her

When a fire ties up traffic on a bridge, how do you get across? That's what's puzzling Mrs. Alma McDonough of South Boston, who goes to work by crossing the Summer street bridge. After thinking the matter over she used the Congress street bridge.

Amateur Composers Get Chance to Win Fame
Are you hiding your light under a bushel? Are the songs of the nation hidden away in your desk drawer. Then here's your opportunity to start on the high-road to musical fame.

The Boston American and Lowe's Orpheum Theatre want to discover Boston's budding composers, and Phil Spitznagel, nationally famed orchestra leader, now headlining with his musical ladies at the Orpheum, will be the judge.

Send in your songs, words and music, to the Boston American, Room 303, 5 Winter Square, Boston, Mass., before midnight on Wednesday, July 25. The winners will be announced on Thursday, July 26, and on the evening of Thursday, July 26, Phil Spitznagel and his orchestra will feature the winning composition at Lowe's Orpheum Theatre.

4700 SAILORS
GET PAY, LEAVE
Provincetown, July 20.—Nearly 4700 men of the United States scouting fleet will be given leave to show liberty tomorrow after their fleet crews are paid off, but all the men ashore will not be allowed to remain in Provincetown.

It is estimated that approximately 3300-4000 will be paid out to the sailors in the coming twenty days, and a goodly portion of that will be spent in Provincetown and its vicinity.

In order to avoid congesting Provincetown with 4700 men, it has been agreed between the authorities and the men that 1600 of them will go to Boston tomorrow on the excursion steamer Dorothy Bradstreet.

They will leave Boston at midnight Sunday, arriving back in Provincetown about 5 a. m. Monday.

Today the fleet was far at sea, engaged in anti-aircraft target practice, but tonight the craft will be back.

19-GUN SALUTE GREETSELY AT FORT DEVENS

The highways of New England will take on a wartime aspect tomorrow, when more than 3500 national guardsmen will either break camp or head for summer training quarters.

The motorized brigade of the 31st Massachusetts field artillery, composed of 1200 men and officers under the command of Brig. Gen. Daniel Needham, will start on their journey to Fort Ethan Allen, Vermont, from Fort Devens, a noon. The Yankees Division winds up a busy year of duty at the same time.

This mass movement follows a brilliant review before Governor Ely, greeted by a 19-gun salute as he arrived at division headquarters at Fort Devens. The Governor declared a guard of honor and a formal reception.

Adj. General John H. Agnew at state headquarters, and Maj. General Erland Fish at division headquarters, greeted the Governor before he proceeded to the parade grounds.

Among the notables in the reviewing stand with Governor Ely were Brig. Gen. Daniel Needham; Joseph H. Crossman, Winifred Schuster, J. Arthur Baker and Eugene F. Bartlett, all members of the Governor's Council; Congressman Edith Nourse Rogers and Mayor Russell of Cambridge.

M'GRATH WINS PAY FIGHT
There was jubilation today in the home of Sergeant John C. McGrath of the Medford police department. As the result of a ruling made yesterday by the suburb's city solicitor, the sergeant is to be paid all his expenses in connection with his battle for reinstatement.

McGrath was dropped from the police force following his eloquent stand with Chief Murphy, 25-year-old Medford police, Jan. 27, 1933. Mayor John H. Burke at that time charged him with conduct unbecoming an officer and leaving the city without permission the day he was married. It was his day off.

McGrath regained his job last December when the State Supreme Court refused to quash the action of Special Justice Robert W. Hill, who ordered his reinstatement.

'GREATEST DAD' 90, IS DEAD

By International News Service
Amityville, N. Y., July 20.—A 90-year-old man, who was the father of so many children he never kept an accurate count of them, was dead today in his home here.

From the more information gathered by his widow, it was estimated that either 20 or 32 offspring resulted from the two marriages of Oscar Darling, hydraulic engineer. But because the two strings are so widely separated, it is possible that a definite figure never will be reached.

Darling was the inventor of a pressure water system.

'beacon hill' DINNER DANCE FOR YOUNGER SET OF BASS ROCK COUNTRY CLUB

By Betty Alden

ONE OF THE LOVELIEST debutantes of the season, Miss Ann Cole, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Edwards Cole of North Andover, was presented at an informal luncheon today at the Essex County Club.

Wearing an azure blue frock with wide-brimmed white hat, Miss Cole greeted about 50 of her sister debutantes at the height of the tennis tournament festivities at Essex. Her mother was one of the ranking players of the country a few years ago and Miss Ann is an amateur player of some real ability herself. She was graduated from Andover Academy and is now a sophomore at Vassar College, where she will return this fall. This summer she is doing research work for the Wenham Historical Society in Wenham, in which her grandmother, Mrs. Edward B. Cole, well known in North Shore social circles, is deeply interested.

In the early autumn, before she returns to college, Miss Cole will have a formal presentation dance and will be entertained by her aunt, Mrs. William H. Coldidge, Jr. (Eleanor Cole), during her holidays.

Among the young guests today were four classmates of the debutante at Vassar. They will all attend the semi-final matches at the Essex Club after the luncheon.

Sub Debutantes Plan Dance

ANOTHER PARTY WHICH TAKES place this evening is a sub-debutante dance at the Magnolia Beach Club which will bring joy to the young group along the shore. Miss Virginia F. Shields, is chairman, and Miss Olivia Ames, daughter of Mrs. Edward L. Bigelow, Miss Evelyn Lilly, daughter of Mrs. Frederick Clay Bartlett and Miss Patricia Phelan, daughter of the James J. Phelan, and Miss Rene Van Nydek Schanck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Schanck, will assist her. The patronesses are Mrs. Bigelow and Mrs. Wadsworth Busk. Miss Schanck is giving a dinner before the dance at her home in Manchester.

Last night's opening of "The Pursuit of Happiness at the Beach Theater, West Falmouth, drew a capacity crowd, among whom were many prominent summer residents of the Cape. We glimpsed Mr. and Mrs. Charles Leshchew, Dr. and Mrs. Eric Warbasse, Mrs. Walter Janney, Mrs. Howard F. Noble, Mrs. Daniel Caulkins and Mrs. John Gifford, daughters of Mrs. Seward Prosser, and Mr. and Mrs. Gates W. McGarrath of Woods Hole; Miss Polly Rich of North Falmouth, Miss Doris Draper of Misses Eleanor and Lucy Fasset and Miss Ruth Davies and Miss Anne Nevin of West Falmouth, and Dwight Deere Wiman, producer of "She Loves Me Not" and other Broadway hits in the large throng.

This hilarious play about "bundling" which was observed in New England in the good old days, will be given the rest of the week. It was directed by Charles Leatherman, who has been connected with the Beach Theater for several years.

H. Wendell Endicott on Maine Trip

LATER AT THE BARCLAY CLUB dining to Larry Funk's sprightly orchestra, we saw the beautiful Lila Draper from Wianno, Faith Chipman, a deb of last year, and many other familiar faces among the smart young set.

We hear that Mr. and Mrs. H. Wendell Endicott have left their beautiful place at Quisset for a few days' fishing in Maine. Their estate adjoins that of the Edwin Websters and is surrounded by beautiful gardens.

Mrs. Robert Lowell, who has a charming place at Mattapoisett on the Cape, is to be at North Haven with her son, Robert, Jr., for the month of August.

Miss Rachel Jackson, daughter of the James Jacksons, is making a round of visits on the Cape this summer. Mrs. and Mrs. Nathan Bill of Springfield are visiting Dr. and Mrs. Fritz B. Talbot at Wianno. The Talbots gave a large clam bake in their honor last evening which everyone in that smart set attended.

Visiting at Yarmouthport

AT THE THACHER HOUSE in Yarmouthport, are the Joseph Storey family of Sherburne. The George Dabneys of Medfield have closed their house with their children are visiting Grandmother Fay at Woods Hole until after Labor Day.

On August 1, Bar Harbor will be very gay with a brilliant ball for the officers of the visiting British and United States warships which will be in the harbor for a week or more. The dance will be held at the Bar Harbor Club with Jack Marchand's Orchestra playing until the dawn and General Charles L. MacCauley of Washington and Mr. Harold Howard of Chicago will be in charge of arrangements. Mr. John Robert Stevenson is one of the shining lights of Bar Harbor this season, we hear.

Junior Birdmen of America
 Greetings, Junior Birdmen! "Navy Day" for Junior Birdmen was a jubilant success when 200 members of the organization and their relatives and friends, an unusually large crowd for a hot summer day, rambled through historic "Old Ironsides" and trod the decks of the mighty U. S. S. Colorado as guests of Rear Admiral H. H. Hough and other naval officers at Charleston Navy Yard yesterday.

It was an event long to be remembered by the boys and girls of this organization as well as the surprising number of adults who accompanied them. The delegation assembled at the gates of the navy yard and there received the welcoming address of Captain H. E. Cook, captain of the navy yard and explained the history of the navy yard and explained the history of the navy yard and explained the history of the navy yard.

Frank Goodman, Jr. Birdmen were then divided into groups and with sailors as guides and spokesmen, made a tour of the yards and viewed the Constitution, culminating the program with a tour of historic "Old Ironsides" and the super-dreadnought, Colorado, as guests of the commanding officers.

Though the sun blazed with fury against the decks of the American frigates and the "Queen of America's Battleships" the Junior Birdmen were too much interested to mind the heat. They were learning the most interesting facts on the battleship's armament, range, speed, and other duties.

And now that the observance of "Navy Day" is past, we plunge immediately into plans for our fall indoor program. We have told you that there is something always for the Junior Birdmen and we are keeping our word.

The new program will keep you all active in aeronautics and interested in your Junior Birdmen work. One of the first events of note will be the popular pilots' pool in which members will vote for their favorite aviators.

This will be followed by a banquet in each wing city where the jockey winner of the pilot contest will be held.

Another interesting activity planned for the fall will be the first annual indoor model plane competition. Indoor model plane activities, as most of you know, are much more popular than an outdoor contest. This is because due to the fact that the weather is not so uncomformably warm and the majority of boys and girls are not out of town as they are in the summer.

Indoor meetings at large the special activity for flight enthusiasts including a flight quadron convention for members and captains in each wing, visits to air factories and all sorts of interesting activities are in prospect.

In addition, many new column features, different from any of the features we have presented you in the past, are being prepared for you and as soon as the August leaf is published you will see how you can look for a host of new features and fun and activities.

Beginning Sunday, July 29, all the news of the Junior Birdmen will be concentrated in a special enlarged section of the Boston Sunday Advertiser and the daily column in the Boston American will be discontinued.

The regular column of news, together with the results of model plane derbies in other wing cities, will be presented in the next issue of the Sunday Advertiser. Be sure you get your copy of the Advertiser to keep abreast of the Junior Birdmen news.

While arrangements for a huge membership drive in the fall is being planned, let's not wait until then to ask those neighborhood pals to join the Junior Birdmen. The Junior Birdmen should have a membership of 100,000 by September 1.

Be sure that this week you get at least one new member to join the Junior Birdmen. Look how much larger our local wing will be if each of your present members did just that. And look what it would mean to our national membership, too. Surely every boy and girl in your neighborhood would give them the activities and features of the Junior Birdmen offers, so tell them about it. And say just how easy it will be for them to join your own flight quadron.

Fruits, Vegetables Feature Weekend Market

Native Yellow Bantam
 Corn Received in Large Quantities

From Martha Lee's Friday Morning Broadcast Over Station WAAB
 At a glance, the market situation is about the same as it was last weekend. There are plenty of very fine native fruits and vegetables reasonably priced.

Most prices have advanced a trifle because of the unfavorable conditions in the West just now. Some ranchers have been talking about sending the cattle east to graze on the alfalfa.

This situation is not true in the fish markets, where there are many excellent kinds of fish from the waters off our own coast.

YELLOW BANTAM CORN
 Probably the most interesting buy is native yellow bantam corn which is coming in from Lexington, Arlington and Concord. It is very good now and is selling for 30 cents per bushel.

Swiss chard, a delicious change from spinach, is selling for 10 cents a peck. Another very green, is 10 cents a peck. Another very green, is 10 cents a peck. Another very green, is 10 cents a peck.

And say just how easy it will be for them to join your own flight quadron.

Your Cooking Problems

QUESTION: "Is there any way to warm over corn bread sticks to make them taste freshly cooked?" Mrs. E. J. Hyman.

ANSWER: To warm over corn bread sticks, put them in a baking dish with a tight fitting cover and put in the oven for about fifteen minutes and they will come out like new.

QUESTION: "Can you help me in regard to my meat loaf? It seems that my loaf sinks rather than swell, and as a result is not as soft as I should desire." Mrs. E. G. Providence, M. 2.

ANSWER: A meat loaf should not swell but it also should not shrink. The cause of this shrinking is either because it has been cooked too long at too high a temperature or because there is not enough moisture in the mixture before it is cooked. It should be cooked in a moderate oven, 350 Deg. F., for not more than one hour in all.

Here is an excellent recipe for meat loaf, with which I think you will have great success.

MEAT LOAF
 1 pound ground beef
 1/2 pound ground pork
 1/2 pound ground veal
 1/2 pound ground lamb
 1/2 pound ground mutton
 1/2 pound ground chicken
 1/2 pound ground turkey
 1/2 pound ground duck
 1/2 pound ground goose
 1/2 pound ground swan
 1/2 pound ground peacock
 1/2 pound ground ostrich
 1/2 pound ground emu
 1/2 pound ground platypus
 1/2 pound ground wombat
 1/2 pound ground koala
 1/2 pound ground wallaby
 1/2 pound ground kangaroo
 1/2 pound ground quokka
 1/2 pound ground bandicoot
 1/2 pound ground possum
 1/2 pound ground wombat
 1/2 pound ground koala
 1/2 pound ground wallaby
 1/2 pound ground kangaroo
 1/2 pound ground quokka
 1/2 pound ground bandicoot
 1/2 pound ground possum

Mix all ingredients thoroughly. Moisten greased baking pan to which thickness. Cover with chili sauce to one-fourth inch thickness. Dot with butter, and add one hot, cup water. Bake 45 minutes in a moderate oven (350 deg. F.).

CAST INTO EDEN :- Jungle Giant Chases Away His Daughter Boldly When She Tries to 'Crash Party'

SYNOPSIS

Jerome Crain, young naval architect, and a beautiful society girl, named Linda, land on a strange island in the Caribbean. The island is a place of a curious myst. Their skill is severely tested as Linda is taken from Crain by a native. Crain is the only of a living human at first. Intermittently, however, blood-curdling cries come from the jungle. The mystery deepens with the finding of a dead body, a high death toll, and a plant that they call "the life" in a small house there. That night, Linda's ship is torn off by some unseen creature and again the eerie scream is heard. Linda, frightened, insists that Jerome stay near her. "I have heard the screams of the dead," she says, "and the sound of having robbed the same yard with you," he says, ironically, "I am not a man to insist on having me in the same house." The mystery of the jungle grows and stolen clothing clears with the appearance of a man, a dead fellow porter and their cub. Jerome, realizing the danger and feeds the animals sugar-water to keep them from being vicious.

Cut Adenoids and Tonsils

I believe this is an excellent point. It is a fact that the tonsils are more likely to become inflamed quickly during warm weather and is less liable to a cold or other complication following the summer months.

Chronic infection of the tonsils is often the chief cause for colds, sore throats, and nasal discharges from the nose, catarrh of the middle ear, catarrh of the throat, and enlarged glands of the neck. The child can no longer breathe freely, and has difficulty in breathing and has suffered from any of these ailments. The child should have a tonsillectomy. The tonsils should be removed. Of course, the attending physician should decide whether the operation is demanded.

There is nothing as well as infections of the nose and throat can be traced to adenoids. Adenoids closely resemble the tonsils, but are smaller in size. They are smaller masses located in the back part of the throat, between the nose and throat.

Enlarged adenoids lead to diffi-

They are a common cause of mouth breathing. Unlike the tonsils, the adenoids rarely become diseased in adults. As a rule they shrink in size and disappear some time during childhood.

I am glad to say that tonsils are no longer ruthlessly removed as in former years. Merely because a child has an occasional of the throat is not sufficient reason for the removal of the tonsils. But if the tonsils are definitely enlarged and diseased, there is a menace to the health of the individual and should be removed as soon as possible. Bear in mind that infection of the tonsils may lead to infection of vital organs without warning.

The operation is a simple one and need cause no undue alarm. If necessary, it can be performed on the child two or three years of age, or younger. The operation should not be done during an acute attack of tonsillitis or while fever is present.

ASHORE OR AFLOAT THE SCOUTING FLEET RULES THE CAPE

It may be hands across the sea where nations are concerned but it is hands across the port holes with Viola Jagger of Boston, and Ralph Mann, a member of the crew of the U. S. S. Whitney, destroyer tender with the scouting fleet manuevering off Cape Cod. Miss Jagger was one of the hundreds of visitors who traveled by boat, train and auto to the tip of the Cape yesterday.

Housekeepers can take a lesson on clean up and paint up affairs by taking a peek at the sailors working on ships off the Cape. It's always painting time with the fleet and Henri Krauss, above, a member of the crew of the Destroyer 111, is shown as he touched up a couple of dull spots on the side of the sleek navy speedster.

New Bedford, July 24.—"She's wonderful!" That is how Thomas S. Delano, 70, ex-New Bedford street sweeper, describes Mrs. M. Dall, President's daughter, who is here on a tour of the Cape.

He went to the Cape office of Samuel Platt, attorney who represents Mrs. Dall in her case, to see her and see what she was like. He found her a very nice, friendly, and interesting woman. He is a friend of a sister of Mrs. Dall. They met at a party given by the latter in New Bedford.

St. Louis, Mo., July 24. (AP)—A girl deputy, who has been losing money, is now in a bad way. She is a member of the St. Louis Police Department and has been losing money for some time.

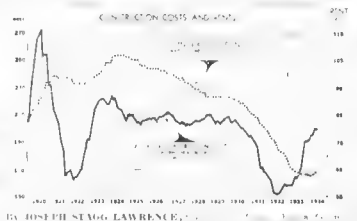

At shore was the watchword as this host of sailors shoved off from the U. S. S. Raleigh, cruiser with the scouting fleet at Provincetown. It was merry time and how the crew "hit the beach" with their cash jingling and ready for a good time. Liberty call finds the youthful members of Uncle Sam's Navy always ready to go and here they are about ready to step on the landing dock at Provincetown. They are having the time of their lives making merry with the natives and visitors along the Cape. Sailors ashore always find plenty of company. Provincetown may be a small town, but there's plenty of entertainment daily for the sailor boys. (All pictures by Boston Evening American Staff Photographers.)

Caution to Officials

Ruth and Self-Sacrifice

Boos at Rockingham
Max Baer's Pantaloons
Brown Learns to Save

By AUSTEN LAKE

THERE IS AN ANNOYING fault, common to many prominent officials in different branches of athletics, a swelling of self-importance that comes from too much publicity. Watching their shadows, as is the trade expression, Ted Tommar and the wrestling ring who delivered him to the wrestling ring last Wednesday night like Gattuso, over the Whitehouse, is one of these.

Tommar, a quiver like a bowl of fruit, stalked like a sandpiper, flailed his arms like a signaller, and tumbled over the wire like a race full of monkeys. At 1:30, about the third hour of a 10-hour marathon of the main go, he kept his legs pumping over the back of one athlete or the other, facing the immense of a fall and ruing up the distant powder holders to false hope.

The late Lou Magnolia, fight referee, was another of this type, who invariably formed his most serious criticism in the belief that the public paid to see him strut. Many of the boxing officials was an ether. And in college football the woods are full of them.

Quietly brothers, quietly, like Sam Smith of Boston, the ker-faced mat cop, who makes few motions, has everything to her corner and stays discretely in the background.

YOU, WHO WERE CLOSE to the wrestling platform during Wednesday's midsummer night's Dixie dance, may have noticed that neither George nor London perspired a single bead during the hour of their grind. Their bodies were dry as a politician's.

Afterward, as George lay on the rubbing table in the Red Sox locker room, I murmured this:

"Yes, and the 'I' was completely dehydrated," which is the U. of Michigan word for using up the natural body moisture.

The Babe Makes Immortal Gesture No. 2

INCIDENTALLY, IT WAS on this same Red Sox rubbing table that Babe Ruth rolled, growling and belching with pain after baseball seasons ago, after he had collided at home plate with Charley Berry, Red Sox catcher. And then, as he writhed and it looked as though he had fractured the great femur bone, he had suddenly jerked up his head to ask, "What's the score? Are we all leadin'?"

And so, the other day, when Lou Gehrig rifled a drive at Cleveland that struck Babe on the shin and laid him low to groan over again, he balked at leaving the game and talking to bed.

"The Yanks are fighting for the lead and they need you," said the Babe, drawing his sword and ordering the pitcher to sound the charge.

It happened between first and second base, where a monument is flanked by a bronze figure of Babe, will mark the spot.

A CONTEMPORARY BOSTON JOURNAL is puzzled as to why the Rockingham race crowd has been lately booing. Are the men booing the horses, or the jockeys, or the trainers, or what? Answer probably is, they were not booing at all, merely booing the hollow, insubstantial groans that well up from their beings over the memory of worthless race stubs departed cash.

Max Baer Hires Man to Hist His Breeches

THIS MORNING I SAT in Max Baer's hotel bedroom, as he appeared pink and rosy from his shower. His valet, or "gentleman's man" as the British say, held his trousers and hinted them over Max's lean shanks, a leg at a time. Then Harry, as is male nursemaid's name, buttoned Max's up and snapped his pointers in line.

"Ever that!" And it was not so long since that Max, world's No. 1 mauler, had only one pair of breeches to his name, which he had himself into merrily for fear of springing the frayed seat. Prosperity, what crimes are committed in his name.

EDDIE COLLINS, Red Sox headman, tells me that the Fenway crowds this year, if continued in proportion, will exceed the last season's total that Connie Mack and his Athletics ever had in their history.

"Familiar baseball city, Philadelphia," mused Eddie, relating how Connie Mack had gone to a Philadelphia barber for a shave in 1930. "Mist' Mack," said the barber, "Always I root for you in bad times. Now you win coppa times. I no longer root for you. I go over and help Phillies."

"And that," summed up Eddie, "is the typical attitude of the Philadelphia fan."

SOMETIME DURING the coming autumn, George V. Brown, assistant manager of the Arena, will be installed as top-kick in the Boston Garden, charged with reducing the huge overhead of that sort place.

"Nothing like lean times to teach you economy," George was saying lately in telling how several years ago, the miles and miles of brine pipe that underlie the concrete freezing floor at the Arena needed to be replaced, being lousycombed by leaks. He asked for bids from the experts, highest of which was $18,500, lowest, $3,500.

"We didn't have the money," said Brown, "so I called in a fireman's crew, one of whom was a steam fitter, another an expiring man."

"Can you do it?" Brown asked.

"The men were dubious and stood by mutely."

"O. K.," continued George, "if you can't we'll probably all be out of jobs."

He bought the material, and the amateur crew set to work. Before the skating season they had laid the pipes and reset the flooring at a cost of $3000. The piping since has never sprung a leak.

RABBIT AWAY, SO DEAN CAN LICK TRIBE

By Joe Cashman

Just what happened to the late, great, and much-missed Frankie Frisch, the last time he had been seen in action here, he had been knocked out of the box three times. Thereafter, and he had already been knocked out of the box three times. Thereafter, and he had already been knocked out of the box three times. Thereafter, and he had already been knocked out of the box three times.

RABBIT IS SMART

And the answer to the Babe's question, "What's the score?" was, "You're leading 1-0." The Babe, who had been knocked out of the box three times, was now leading 1-0. The Babe, who had been knocked out of the box three times, was now leading 1-0. The Babe, who had been knocked out of the box three times, was now leading 1-0.

"HI, THERE, YO!"

At the first crucial moment of the game, the Babe, who had been knocked out of the box three times, was now leading 1-0. The Babe, who had been knocked out of the box three times, was now leading 1-0. The Babe, who had been knocked out of the box three times, was now leading 1-0.

Amateur Throne Golf Fails to Draw Stars

By Davis J. Walsh

New York, July 20—In a formal statement of our aims and intentions, issued today, President S. Bush of the United States Golf Association, has found it necessary to remind one and all that we're going to play a national amateur championship in golf this year, as usual.

Nobody seems to know rightly just why there has been any misunderstanding on this point, but the fact is that, if the entry list is to be a credit to the game, it must be a list of the best amateur players in the country.

RUTH BACK ON GRANT PLAYS ART CLAYTON FEET SOON

Cleveland, O., July 20—The prediction that Babe Ruth would be out of the lineup for at least two weeks and probably for the season was a little premature, it would seem. The declaration in Babe's right leg is rapidly leaving, and the swelling decreasing. "I shall try to keep him in bed a couple of more days," says Dr. St. J. Castle, club physician for the Cleveland Indians. "If he isn't tomorrow," answers the Babe. "I'll be out tomorrow," answers the Babe. "I'll be out tomorrow," answers the Babe.

Arnold Anderson, 16 years old, a player of the 1933 St. Louis amateur football team, has signed a contract with the Braves of the National Professional Football League next fall.

Crossleys Win Father and Son

Springfield, July 20—H. Crossley and Wilfred Crossley of Norfolk won the second annual Father and Son tournament here on a two-day golf course. The Crossleys tied Milton B. Beach, Sr., and Milton B. Beach, Jr., at 12. They matched cards but were even. Then a coin was tossed, and the elder Crossley called the turn.

Big Barney Stays

Cleveland, O., July 20—Walter Johnson today had in his hand a signed contract to manage the Cleveland Indians in 1933. This did President Hal Braden, who had been speculating as to who was to succeed the former Washington pitching ace at the helm of the club. Johnson had been recruited successfully by writers and fans for his handling of the Cleveland pitchers.

Wilmer Allison In Seabright Play

New York, July 20—Wilmer Allison, returning from Europe because he was not wanted to play against the Americans in the Davis Cup competition, has entered the Seabright invitation tournament which begins here Monday.

Federal Government Must Protect, Not Destroy, American Merchant Marine

THE government's policy with reference to the use of ocean mail as a means of developing the American merchant marine is to undergo a searching examination with a view to radical changes.

This announcement, which comes from Washington, will bring cheer to competing foreign carriers and corresponding dismay to American shipping interests.

To begin with, it forecasts and obviously contemplates a fundamental change—and change involves arrest of progress, stoppage of effort and confusion in an undertaking which calls for clarity of purpose, confidence, and the orderly and sustained pursuit of a duly adopted program.

Furthermore, it tends to paralyze the efforts of American ship owners and to terminate effectively their co-operation, so earnestly sought by the government, in the carrying out of a broad national policy.

SOME consolation can be drawn from the fact that the revision of existing contracts is to be preceded by hearings at which the parties in interest will be given opportunity to present their views.

The administration has apparently learned the lesson of Postmaster-General Farley's wretched bungling of the domestic air mail contracts.

Their abrupt cancellations, without hearing or trial, constitutes an indelible stain upon the administration's record for fair play. In fact, nothing has been done to explain or extenuate its incredible stupidity.

The assurances of Postmaster-General Farley that he personally knew the facts, and that no more was to be said, were naturally not accepted by popular opinion as a substitute for a hearing to the parties accused and a decision, after due inquiry and in a judicial spirit, of the charges, which were never anything but vague, conflicting and unsubstantiated.

There ARE to be hearings, and it is to be hoped that the administration also will be heard, as to just what its attitude is toward the upbuilding and maintenance of an adequate merchant marine.

If its vaunted protection of the American shipping industry comes down to a question of how much profit the Post Office Department can make out of the various measures of support and encouragement it may adopt, then let us know it.

It would be as reasonable to make the policy of protecting American industry in general turn exclusively upon the income which the government may derive from the collection of import duties.

It should be KNOWN whether the government, despite all its protestations, is behind the American merchant marine, or is not.

ENCOURAGEMENT with a string tied to it is worse than no encouragement. Support that can suddenly be withdrawn is only an invitation to swift calamity.

A policy subject to reversal overnight is nothing but a snare.

The systematic endeavor to encourage the building and operation of American flag ships was the result of long discussion in successive sessions of Congress. It represents the deliberate and considered opinion of the country. It has borne fruit—and good fruit.

The American carrying trade has almost achieved a respectable position. The percentage of our exportable goods carried on American ships has steadily risen.

The people have, at last, as the result of patient discussion, reached an enlightened perception of the importance of an efficient merchant marine, both as an auxiliary to our navy and a vital factor in our national security.

If there are some obvious abuses in the operation of the present laws, let them be eliminated.

But let us not wantonly mutilate a policy, so long studied, so deliberately decided upon and so far-reaching, in the narrow, doctrinaire spirit displayed by Secretary of Commerce Roper in his sapient allusions to traffic flow, trade policies, agricultural needs and a self-sustaining merchant marine; nor approach it in the superficial and uncomprehending way, which is so characteristic of the Postmaster-General.

PROTECTION SHOULD PROTECT, AND NOT DESTROY!

The protection of our merchant marine is one of the primary duties resting upon the administration, and one of its most specific pledges.

Auto Insurance Is Proving Costly

News of another increase in automobile insurance rates comes from the office of Insurance Commissioner Brown on Beacon Hill.

We can take it for granted that the proposed rates WILL be increased, because such forecasts from the commissioner's office in the past have always presaged advances.

This same news "leaked out" about this time in 1933 and in 1932 and in 1931, and so on back through all the years Massachusetts has had its compulsory automobile insurance law.

Commissioner Brown's department tells us that the higher compulsory insurance rates for 1935 are "inevitable."

We are told that the rates, as in the past, will be based on the losses sustained by the insurance companies in auto accident cases during the five years preceding Jan. 1 of the current year.

This sounds very fair, unless we stop to consider that the rates will DIFFER, according to the section in which you happen to reside.

The Registry of Motor Vehicles reports fatal and personal injury accidents recorded in the past five years totaled 338,036. There were 7102 fewer cases in the previous five year period.

Cynics will surely agree to say that the increase can be in part attributed to the advertising of how EASY it is to collect money by CLAIMING injuries after minor automobile collisions.

Higher automobile insurance rates will raise a storm of protest all over the Bay State.

The protest will be VAIN unless concerted action is taken to MAKE the politicians amend the existing compulsory insurance law in a way that will end some of the gouging of our motorists.

A start CAN be made by making the compulsory insurance rates as fair in one zone as in another.

When the Commonwealth sells life insurance—and it was the first to engage in this venture—it does NOT zone the insured. The zoning system looks much like a clever scheme to make the charges to automobilists as high as the traffic will bear.

Music on the Esplanade

Those who think that great music is appreciated only by Symphony Hall auditors will have their eyes opened if they walk down to the Charles River Esplanade one of these evenings.

Crowds greater than ever are thronging to hear the sixth annual concert series that Arthur Fiedler is conducting in the new steel shell. There were 2,000 present for the first concert Sunday.

It is estimated that more than 1,000,000 persons have heard these concerts in the last five years. It would take more than 20 seasons in Symphony Hall to attract as many.

Few American cities can offer anything to approach the excellent Fiedler programs. Slew your appreciation by making a contribution to the Esplanade Concerts Fund, Merchants National Bank, 28 State street, Boston.

Fishermen Do Better

The lean days which have beset New England fishermen since 1930 seem to be over.

The men who go down to the sea from Gloucester, Boston and Portland are receiving a fairer price for their labors.

Latest figures from the Department of Commerce show a 17 per cent increase in quantity and a 41 per cent increase in value of the catch for these principal fishing ports for the first five months of 1934.

This is as it should be. And lest the large percentage gains be misinterpreted let it be known that even now the hazardous lure of the fisherman barely brings an average price of TWO CENTS per pound.

May the close of 1934 find the price for the year's catch average even higher.

Let's Protect Boston

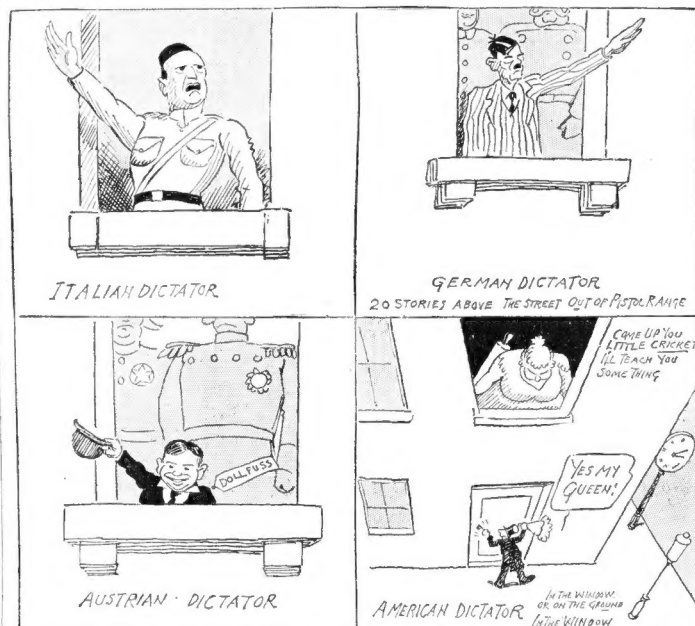

The reported recommendation of the Boston Municipal Research Bureau that the Boston Fire Department be reduced should be carefully weighed before any action is taken.

Commissioner Edward F. Fitzgibbon is quoted as being opposed to a cut.

There is still such a thing as being "penny wise and pound foolish." We would not care to save a few dollars now and as a result lose many more later in a major conflagration.

Dictators Talk From High Balconies—Out of Range

Faith in Government

By James T. Williams, Jr.

By their decisive defeat of the general strikes against "public safety," the people of San Francisco have vindicated the inviolable faith in the inviolable principle of public sentiment under the American system of government.

Public sentiment is everything. With public sentiment, nothing can fail; without it, nothing can succeed.

The back of San Francisco's general strike was swiftly broken because instead of evoking the support of public sentiment, it aroused and organized public sentiment into righteous indignation.

This is what always happens. The United States, sooner or later, when the government of the Constitution is defied, public sentiment is always on the side of the government of the people, and always against those who would overthrow the people's government.

Abraham Lincoln, who kept the Union whole, had a full knowledge and he was grateful for the power of public sentiment.

The Civil War "he Southern states seceded, and the North, in the first year of the conflict, the North, and always against those who would overthrow the people's government.

But it did not raise enough of them to win the war. Mr. Lincoln realized that the war could only be won by the North through conscription. He disregarded the advice of his political advisors, and the plea of his friends who warned him against demanding of the people "what the people would never stand."

He knew that if public sentiment, at the South, stirred up conscription, so would public sentiment at the North, and he was right.

BACKED CLEVELAND Grover Cleveland trusted the American people. He also had implicit faith in the power of public sentiment. It supported him when he feared personal financial loss, or those engaged in speculation and stock gambling, in any way, and generally in firing by their wife. The nation of the pocket-travelers, respectively the pocket-travelers, but these things are as nothing when weighed against the sublime patriotism and devotion to their country, the people of the land."

Public sentiment supported Theodore Roosevelt when he compelled a settlement of the Pennsylvania coal strike in 1902. Public sentiment supported Calvin Coolidge when he was elected as President of the United States in 1924.

Public sentiment supported Grover Cleveland when he was elected as President of the United States in 1892. Public sentiment supported William McKinley when he was elected as President of the United States in 1896.

Public sentiment supported Woodrow Wilson when he was elected as President of the United States in 1912. Public sentiment supported Franklin D. Roosevelt when he was elected as President of the United States in 1932.

Public sentiment supported Harry Truman when he was elected as President of the United States in 1948. Public sentiment supported Dwight D. Eisenhower when he was elected as President of the United States in 1952.

Human Side of the News; Twilight of Bosses

By Edwin C. Hill

Have we come to the twilight of the bosses? Are they finally passing over the bridge and leaving the city? The question poses out of the news from at least three great cities.

By all reports and indications the smashing of the Vase machine in Philadelphia is completed and the gray and pugy William Scott Vare takes his place on the side shelf along with John F. Curry of New York and Maurice Maschke of Cleveland.

Thus, within a year's time, we have the rare spectacle of three of the outstanding political bosses of the country passing out of the picture.

With no one rising in Chicago to replace Carmine's place, it appears that only Kansas City, in the person of Bluff Tom Deadergast, can show us a boss of the old school.

Tom came through handsily in the majority election last spring, but he has a state primary ahead of him in August which may or may not be a little away from his prestige.

Vare, Curry and Deadergast, three of the same name, stand alone clinging on in face of the uprising against the machine.

All started in humble circumstances. Vare was a street sweeper in Philadelphia's Wanamaker's. Curry on New York's West Side and Deadergast in the tough North Side of Kansas City.

From petty ward politics they moved their way up to control of great municipalities. Vare Curry carved terms in Congress, but Deadergast went by the rule that no boss should hold an elective office.

These three had their private life in business. Vare was the official truckman of Philadelphia, so much so that Rolfe Penrose was wont to refer to him as the "sheep" statesman. Curry's addition in New York's insurance and Deadergast takes care of most of his city's needs in the present line.
